

WILLIAM SUPPIES SUICIDE IN STRAND

Driver for Union Pacific Tea Company Was Well Known Figure Through Ulster County—Shot Himself Through Heart With Revolver.

William Suppies, familiarly known as "the tea man" throughout rural Ulster, committed suicide this morning by shooting himself through the heart with a revolver in the basement of the Roundout National Bank building at 22 East Strand. Suppies' body was found shortly after 8 o'clock by his wife, care-taker for the bank, who went from their rooms on the third floor of the building to call her husband for breakfast. His body lay in the hallway.

Dr. A. A. Stern was called and found the man had been dead for at least a half hour. The body was removed to the street floor where it was viewed by Coroner Kelly while a police officer stationed at the Strand and Ferry street entrances kept a crowd of curious spectators back. The body was afterward removed to Wachtmeyer's undertaking rooms.

Suppies had made thorough work of his death, having borrowed one of the revolvers from the bank office. The weapon was an Iver-Johnson and its 38 calibre ball passed entirely through the body from a point just above the left breast, the man having evidently opened his shirt in order to better direct the fatal shot.

For about five years, Mr. Suppies had been employed by the Union Pacific Tea Company of 312 Wall street as a driver and before that time he had been in business for himself. He was 49 years of age and was born in Roundout, having a wide circle of acquaintance. The dead man had been dependent for some time past and for the past week had not been at work. He telephoned the tea company's office Thursday to say that he would be at work this morning.

Besides his wife, Suppies leaves a daughter and two brothers, Theodore and Fred Suppies.

TREE TOP ENGINEERS.

Exciting Episode in Scientific Pruning on Downs Street.

Thursday afternoon while people were returning from work in the early evening the residents of Downs street were treated to a very amusing incident. A man in the employ of an uptown firm was busy trimming a tree in front of No. 10 Downs street and was making an attempt to cut off the top of a poplar tree. The top had been partly saved through and a rope attached to pull the branch away from the houses, but the tree trimmer had not the strength to do the work, and after a great deal of advice from about fifty lookers-on, a telephone man, a carpenter, a painter and another passerby, with the tree trimmer, took the situation in hand and volunteered to assist in pulling the tree top down.

The rope first used was not long enough and a clothesline from the back yard was secured and attached to the end of the rope and all secured a firm hold and pulled. The tree top first wobbled, then bent and finally the rope broke—and all five men fell back in the same manner as do a row of dominoes. The men of the various trades gathered themselves up after their sudden fall to earth and a nearby resident offered the use of a stronger rope and block and tackle. This method proved superior over main strength and the job was soon completed.

NEGOTIATING FOR DIMICK PROPERTY

Rifton Water Power May be Utilized Again at an Early Date to Generate Electric Current.

Since some months ago when the carpet mills at Rifton closed the disposal of the big mills at that place has been a matter of great concern to many people. The village of Rifton was almost entirely supported by the mills and when they closed down many of the families moved to other cities where they might secure employment. Stores were compelled to close and the village has since taken on a deserted appearance. Now comes a report that the mills will shortly be opened up but the work to be carried on is not known.

Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce Canfield and R. N. Voorhis, one of the executors of the Dimick estate, visited the mills a few days ago and met for a conference in regard to the property. Mr. Canfield is interested in the development of water power in the vicinity of Kingston and as the Rifton power is one of the largest in the vicinity, it is of great importance. Since the closing down of the Rifton mills the loss of trade to merchants in this city has been considerable as the weekly pay roll amounted to a large sum when the mills were running on full time, and as Kingston was the nearest city many of the residents of the village came here to do their shopping.

Cowan & Davis, real estate brokers, have the property for sale and negotiations are pending for a new enterprise, namely to start up the mills to their full capacity, but also to develop the 7,000 horsepower for the generation of electricity. The negotiations are for the entire water right, which belongs to the trustees of the Dimick estate. Nothing definite has been done in regard to the disposal of the property, but it is hoped that it will be taken over by some company which will take advantage of the excellent power and mills.

United States Hotel For Sale.

The United States Hotel at the corner of Greenkill avenue and Broadway is for sale by its owner, Charles C. Abeel, of Catskill. The building was built in 1898 by the late P. J. O'Pray, who operated it as a hotel for many years. Upon his death the property came to his daughter, the late Annie C. Abeel, wife of the present owner, who formerly was in the brick business at Catskill. Melvin Beadle has leased the hotel for two years and his lease expires November 1 of this year. The structure contains forty rooms and was built for apartments on the upper floors and stores on the ground floor. It may easily be converted into such with little trouble. The property includes two frame buildings on Railroad avenue, one of which is part of the hotel.

ROADS HAVE NOT WINTERED WELL

Ravages of Freezing Show That Lack of Proper Drainage Exists in a Number of Places.

A large amount of repair work will be needed to place the state and county highways throughout the county in first class condition. With few exceptions the roads did not withstand the winter as well as had been expected, although the newly constructed roads stood up all right and most of the roads needing repair are those which have been constructed for several years.

The Esopus road in the vicinity of Esopus Lake will need considerable repairing. This is the old section, in the vicinity of Ulster Park, and until this year it has worn well since its construction several years ago. The new section wintered in good shape and is in fine condition.

The Highland-Milton road, which was built some years ago, has worn well until the past winter but it, too, will need considerable repairing. The other Southern Ulster sections of state and county highways which were built or repaired last year have come through the winter in good shape, but they have developed the need of better drainage.

Practically all the roads which have crumbled during the winter and spring have demonstrated the lack of sufficient drainage and in nearly every place where repair work will be required the principal damage has resulted to the bottom courses which naturally have been unable to withstand the undermining influence of water which has backed against the sides. There is little complaint of the drainage of the surface of the roads but little or no provision appears to have been made for carrying the surface water further than the sides of the highways, so that puddles in ditches or in depressions alongside the banked sides of the roads in nearly every case have been found to be responsible for the damage.

AN APRIL MOVING TALE.

Complications Over Sale of Stove Likely to Lead to Suit.

With the warm spring weather of the past few days householders who are looking about for other locations, and many are afflicted with the "moving bee" which is all preliminary to the fact that sometimes moving brings complications that are likely to lead to city court actions.

This morning a tale of a deal in a kitchen stove was brought to light, and from what was learned it is likely that court actions will follow. It seems that one man afflicted with the "moving bee" had been thinking seriously of moving and had already picked out a suitable house. He found that he would not need his kitchen stove in his next location and sold it to a neighbor for $25. In making the sale he explained that he did not want the purchaser to remove the stove as yet, as he wanted to cook on it until he was ready to move.

The purchaser agreed and the original owner continued to use the stove.

The other day he moved. The purchaser of the stove went to secure it and learned that the owner had again sold it to another neighbor who had promptly removed it.

The question now is who owns the stove? The first purchaser is thinking deeply of bringing a suit against the original owner to recover either the stove or the $25 paid for it.

Bishop Stuntz to Lecture.

Bishop Homer C. Stuntz, who is to lecture in the St. James's Church on April 14, under the auspices of the Women's Post Jubilee Missionary Course, is a true cosmopolitan. He is a real American, by birth and sentiment, but he is a man who has lived in many parts of the world and who has a world-wide outlook. He is of Pennsylvania German ancestry, but hails from Iowa. He was for some years editor of a religious paper in India. After the American flag was hoisted over the Philippines he was selected to be the first superintendent of Methodist missions in those islands, where he toiled side by side with W. H. Taft. Ever since those days they have been fast friends. After that he was the general secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church. After he was elevated to the episcopacy he was selected as the best possible man to represent his church in South America, which now for some years has been his vast diocese. He comes with the last word concerning the wonderful continental opportunities of Latin America, and fresh from the Panama conference. He is an orator of great merit, while his subject at the present time is a most attractive one.

LADY COLEBROOK.

TELLS HOW THIRTY TITLED WOMEN HELPED MAKE BRITISH GUNS.

New York, April 7.—Lady Colebrook, wife of a British government official, has arrived here for a rest, after working six months in the Vickers-Maxim munitions factory in England.

Lady Colebrook, who never dressed her own hair until the war came, was one of thirty titled ladies who "signed up" for six months in the munitions factory. That was last summer. They were put to work finishing gun parts and shells.

The splendid example these women set resulted in thousands of others following their footsteps, until today, according to Lady Colebrook, there are 15,000 women working in the British munitions factories.

One by one, however, the titled ladies, unused to such arduous labor, dropped out. When the six months' term expired, only fifteen remained, among them Lady Colebrook. A long rest was recommended. She was bundled aboard the Nieuw Amsterdam by Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Guinness and brought here. At the Guinness home she hopes to recover her strength.

"It was a trying ordeal," she said, "but we were glad to do something to help in this awful war. We worked eight hours a day and the munition wage was two shillings five pence, or 38 cents. Night work paid higher.

"The Young Men's Christian Association put up a great building near the munitions plant, where meals were served to the women. At night, when the Zeppelins came, we were marshalled into this building.

"There have been many Zeppelin raids upon England—many more than you hear of here. We were warned in advance. There always was much excitement. Occasionally a woman would become hysterical and begin to sob. Then some other one would start 'tipperry,' and that always calmed things."

THOMAS WAS BADLY BATTERED

Supplanted by Rival in Affections of Former "Lady Friend," Hickson Met Warm Reception When He Attempted to Call.

Thomas Hickson, colored, came to Kingston on Thursday and while in town decided to pay a visit to his sweetheart, Miss Mary Masten, who resides in the Long House on Broadway. His visit was not welcome and he received a warm reception when he persisted in forcing his attentions on his former friend and he was evicted by his rival, who had supplanted him the affections of Miss Masten. What followed resulted in the arrest of Thomas and his being sentenced to the county jail for thirty days when arraigned before Recorder Lang. At the expiration of Thomas's term it is expected that his features will have assumed normal proportions.

From the story as brought out at the trial in recorder's court Thomas last year had paid attentions to Miss Masten and when he reached town he decided to call on her. The first time he called she refused to see him and shut the door in his face.

Thomas retired, but only to a nearby thrust emporium, where he accumulated a load of joy water and then returned to visit his former friend. He was told that Thomas did not expect to find that he had been supplanted by a rival in the person of James White, whose appearance baffled his name, but nothing daunted Thomas managed to secure entrance to the Masten house and proceeded to lay down on Miss Mary's bed to sleep off his jags.

Mr. White said this morning that he saw that Thomas had been drinking and he aroused him and led him outside and talked with him. They then shook hands and Mr. White returned to finish his visit with Miss Masten, leaving Thomas outside.

After thinking the matter over, however, Thomas decided that it was up to him to make another attempt to visit Miss Masten. This time he had a huge jack knife in his hand when he attempted entrance.

He was met by Mr. White who said that when he saw that Thomas had a knife and was evidently intending to use it, that he took the knife away from Thomas and then hit him.

Thomas's appearance bore out the fact that he had been hit and when questioned by Recorder Lang as to how he was beaten up replied that Mr. White had hit him with his fist and that his former friend had hit him on the head with a beer bottle.

Thomas's eye was badly discolored, his face badly swollen, one lip cut and he had a gash on top of the head.

Miss Masten said that Thomas had threatened to "cut me from ear to ear." That was what led Mr. White to frustrate Mr. Hickson's design by taking the knife away and hitting him a few taps.

From Thomas's appearance today it is quite evident that there is some power to Mr. White's blows. It might be added that Mr. White towered head and shoulders over Mr. Hickson.

NEW CHARCHIAN SHIRT FACTORY

Plans for Three Story Building at the Corner of Smith Avenue and Cornell Street Have Been Prepared.

F. Jacobson & Sons, owners of the Charchian Shirt Company, whose Kingston factory is at present on Field Court, are within a short time to construct a three story brick factory on the corner of Smith avenue and Cornell street, the plans for which have been prepared by Architect Myron S. Teller. The factory on Field Court is not large enough for the increasing business and so the promoters decided to erect the new structure, which will add another to the many branch factories which they operate, the others being in New Jersey, within a short distance from the main office of the company in New York city.

The building will be entirely occupied by the company, which in all probability will establish a laundry in conjunction with the other departments of the shirt making industry. Because space is limited at the present factory a laundry could not be operated. This new industry will bring many well-paid shirt makers into the city.

The factory will be built on modern lines throughout. The floors and supports will be of slow burning mill construction and at each end towers will be built to receive the fire-proof stairs. Modern safety devices and sanitary equipment will be installed to conform with the new factory laws in the most approved manner.

By comparing the proposed building with the incubator factory on Cornell street at present occupied by Fessenden's shirt factory and the Herbert Brush Company, a good idea of the size of the building can be obtained. Jacobson's factory will have a frontage of 183 feet on Cornell street and 53 feet on Smith avenue. These dimensions are much larger than those of the incubator factory, the length of the new building being fifty feet and the width three feet greater than that of the incubator plant. Whereas the last named factory consists of two floors, the proposed building will have another story.

The building will be located ten feet back from the street line, affording a space for lawn besides the sidewalks.

Plans will be in the hands of contractors for estimates Monday and work will be started shortly. The heavy business of the company demands that the building be completed at an early date.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

The place to be happy is here, the time to be happy is now, the way to be happy is to help make others so—Ingersoll.

Praise loudly, blame softly.

THE SCHOOL LUNCH.

In one neighborhood where the packing of lunches has become such a daily problem that the mothers have given it thought, five mothers agreed to pack the lunch for the five one day a week.

This gave the mothers the relief from the monotonous task and the children a change of food. It was pleasant all around. This is an idea which might be used in many places where children need to carry lunches.

Custards, when well baked, make a most desirable food. With a sandwich and a few nuts and an apple, this will prove a most satisfying meal.

Paper napkins are so inexpensive that one should keep a supply on hand to use for lining the box or basket and for napkins. Each sandwich, pickle, egg or piece of cake should be wrapped carefully. Brown bread, rye, bran, cornmeal and baking powder biscuits will furnish variety. A little surprise to vary the usual is always pleasing to a child. A piece of candy, a fig or a date hidden away in a corner will always delight them.

Peanut butter is enjoyed (when not made too common) as a sandwich filling. There are so many kinds of salad fillings that there need never be one used too often to tire of it.

Brown bread spread with butter and well seasoned cottage cheese in which a bit of onion juice is placed for seasoning, and a tablespoonful of chopped nuts is another good filling.

Candy, of course is always liked by the little people but should be used sparingly. A piece of candy eaten after each meal will not be undesirable, but a fig or date will satisfy the sweet tooth and be much more wholesome.

Dates, nuts and a little cream mixed together, the ingredients chopped fine before adding the cream, makes a most dainty sandwich.

Fruit should never be omitted from the lunch, as it is one of the foods indispensable to a well-balanced lunch. The dainty careful packing of a lunch is a most important means of keeping children well, happy and able to enjoy their food.

Distinctive Millinery

Following the dictates of Paris in French styles of merit, and venturing many ideas of our own, has resulted in giving us an enviable reputation for distinctive and exclusive styles in Spring and Summer Millinery. This unusualness is emphasized to a marked degree in our present showing, to which we have given lines and graces as many and varied as the types of women who will wear them. There is unusual style and character in all our Millinery, and our prices are second to none in the city for moderation, but in most instances our quality and styles are better.

Hats at $2.50, $3.50, $4.95 to $50

Hats that express the right styles in a decidedly dressy, smart way, and the variety of models is so large that you cannot fail to select a becoming Hat.

Every man, woman or child who buys at this market finds that we always endeavor to inspire confidence and insure satisfaction. We realize that confidence is the foundation of successful business, and make sure that each customer who trades here finds courtesy and proper service.

We could not inspire confidence will tough, "cheap" meats, but some butchers seem to be able to do so for a time. Three hundred and sixty-five days in the year our main thought is high meat quality and lowest consistent prices, and it is this very principle which has built up and enabled us to continue our business for a long term of years. We have built upon the solid foundation of satisfaction to patrons at any price, and our standing in the community as dependable butchers is as firm and unshakable as the foundation of satisfaction to

No Substitution at Planthaber's Food Sales

The "something just as good" food store days are short. The general public is being educated to ask for well-known goods and to insist upon getting them. We never, by substitution, in order to make a larger profit on our sales, will run the risk of destroying, for the sake of a few cents, that confidence the public has placed in us. You, the customer, are never satisfied with substitution. If this pure food store were generally known to be a substitutor, you wouldn't consider it a safe place at which to trade, would you? You would take with a grain of suspicion "something just as good" which we might offer you. Here you get what you ask for at the lowest possible price at which it can be obtained, and you must be perfectly satisfied or get your money back.

ABOUT GARNISHING

Some of the Sprigs That Make Food Attractive.

THEY APPEAL TO THE EYE.

There Are Two Sorts of Trimming. One For Flavor and One For Decoration—Garnishing Often Turns a Dismissed Dish into a Favorite.

With spring spleenness upon us, it's well for housewives to bait appetites. Very often a dish may be delicious to taste, but unattractive to the eye, and the eye judges it before the palate does. So make it attractive to the eye if you would have it a successful dish.

There are two sorts of garnishes—those that add flavor as well as decoration and those that are only decorative and do not add flavor. Mushrooms, for instance, served with a ragout of meat, add to both appearance and taste. A bright green leaf under half a muskmelon adds only to appearance. This second class of garnishes need not be served when they are used on the serving dish.

Parsley is perhaps the most useful garnish. In sprigs with cold meat, minced with soup and vegetables and salads, it is always fresh in color and tempting in taste.

Mushrooms are useful because, canned, they always can be kept on hand. And so can peas. A mound of canned peas served in the middle of an Irish stew makes it far daintier than a mound of plain boiled potatoes. Potatoes, however, can be used for garnishing. Scoop raw potatoes with a round scoop and boil them. Serve them with melted butter and parsley for a garnish, or force soft, mashed potatoes through a stiff paper cone and brown in the oven, or fry brown small rounds of potatoes, or use French fried potatoes, and potato garnish is suitable with cold meat.

Green and red peppers, too, can be used to garnish vegetables, meats and salads. An egg salad is much improved if it is dotted with bits of red pepper. Minced green pepper or shredded green pepper adds both taste and looks to potato and cabbage salad.

Beets and carrots can be cut in rings or stars, cooked tender very carefully and then used to garnish substantial meat dishes.

Barberries are one of the purely ornamental garnishes. Holly, too, can be used in season, and bits of evergreen can often be called on to help make a simple dish attractive.

Remember that the garnishing of a dish will often change it from something not liked to a favorite with the family.

BEDROOM SLIPPERS.

Various Nether Comforts That May Also Be Good Looking.

It is possible to have attractive bedroom slippers which match your negligee, or at least are in accord with it. There are endless varieties of "mules" in one colored silk or satin, edged with silk cord and decorated with tiny rosebuds. This is the kind of work that the expert needlewoman enjoys, but besides such dainty trifles more sensible everyday ones can be bought which do not clash with one's beauty loving ideas.

Kid slippers, with low, comfortable heels, may be bought in pinks, blues and browns. Very similar to them are the felt styles, whose instep is decorated with a cut out design of the felt over a contrasting color.

White kid well covered with a Japanese embossed design are shown. Most luxurious are the slippers of bright quilted satin, whose ribbon rosettes add a tiny rhinestone.

Made with only a toe covering, but minus the heels attached to "mules," are other models, some covered with white flannel, decorated with a satin bow; others, to be used en route to the bath, are made of checked toweling, the edges bound with corduroy and the sole being very woolly.

KINGSTON, N. Y., APRIL 7, 1916.

Unless the demand for additional soldiers with which to chase Villa ends soon, the United States will be unprotected within its borders by its regular army. "More troops for Mexico" does not have the same significance that "More troops" has when applied to the military movement of the European belligerents; usually it means only a regiment or part of a regiment. Not all of the soldiers sent to the Mexican border or beyond will or can see fighting; large numbers are required to guard supply bases, prevent the cutting of lines of communication and perform a hundred odd jobs which in a business establishment would be grouped under the general term "labor," or on a farm would be counted as "chores." The total strength of the army has not yet been brought up to the less than 119,000 authorized by Congress, and because of the necessity for employing soldiers in various capacities connected with the army the fighting strength is small. Traveling in a country whose paths and hiding places are perfectly familiar to them, Villa's force if hard pressed can divide itself in bands, which can conduct guerilla warfare for many months against American residents of Mexico and against the American army. Extermination of such pests as Villa cannot be accomplished in a week and the longer the campaign in Mexico continues the more it appeals to the average citizen for the need of preparedness.

Clashes of authority are not infrequent in State and municipal governments between separate bodies whose duties sometimes overlap. It is one of the absurdities incident to the growth of administration machinery and how it can work to the disadvantage of all concerned is shown in the present differences between the health and charities departments in Albany and in Kingston. The former council believes that maintenance of families made dependent through the imposition of a quarantine devolves upon the charities department while the latter just as stoutly asserts that the burden is a proper charge against the health fund. Any person who had the misfortune to become eligible for aid from the cause stated would be entitled to sympathy in the present stage of the relations between the bodies so actively engaged in shifting responsibility. So far as their pocketbooks are concerned, taxpayers may view the situation with entire equanimity, firm in the conviction that they must pay the shot whichever side to the controversy wins. It is a silly teatop tempest when the average item chargeable under this head are estimated at comparatively few dollars and which would be easily susceptible of explanation in the reports of any branch of the city government which paid the bills.

Imbeciles who start endless, chain prayers and similar schemes to attract notoriety or get mail matter ought to get together and devise something new, or their laurels will be confiscated by a Massachusetts anthologist who advertises in one of the literary reviews asking poets to send him "copies of best poems for anthology." He evidently possesses good business judgment for he makes these wise provisions: "No poems returned. Authors of accepted poems notified." The increased price paid for waste paper by junk dealers ought to net the anthologist a tidy sum. Fortunately for himself he gives neither his name nor his house address in the advertisement, else some poets might journey far to prove to him face to face that they are poets. Railroads which have been complaining of decreased revenue owing to a falling off of passenger traffic might well give the advertisement wide publicity and thereby recoup their losses from Massachusetts-bound poets, especially of the spring variety. Or possibly the advertisement is not a bona-fide offer and the anthologist merely has been employed by the Carnegie or the Rockefeller Foundation to gather statistics on the number of people who ought to be in jail but up to this time have escaped just punishment.

With the shortening of the spring skirts to a point two inches shorter than the fall skirt, it is feared that the umbrella or the summer belt may yet furnish the motif for this part of woman's apparel. In reflecting upon the masculine eye strain entailed by these tendencies in fashion, Editor William Allen White, of the Emporia Gazette, again implies that something is the matter with Kansas in his discovery of a vast number of bow-legged girls of whose existence he never before had had a suspicion except as straight-legged, straight-legged members of society in the Sunflower State. The only crumb of comfort he finds is that men are now better posted as to what they are marrying than at any time since Adam. The Emporia editor sapiently remarks that "the craze for physical valuation as a part of rate-making seems to have followed the women when they made their sortie into politics." In Kansas, however, equal suffrage has been of long standing, hence the bow-leggedness with which this authority finds fault may be largely due to the additional burdens the ballot has placed upon the feminine understanding. At least such anatomical animadversions have not been noted in the editorial pages of the more conservative East.

Contributions to this column are frequently received from others than the regular Port Ewen correspondent and published with the other news. The paragraph in regard to improved mail service was in this class and the correspondent did not even know it had been written until it appeared in the paper.—Editor, Freeman.

Virtue and Riches.

It cannot be spared nor left behind, but it hindereth the march, yea, and the care of it sometimes loseth or disturbeth the victory."

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS NOTES

Tonight the Kingston High School Glee Club of one hundred voices will give its annual concert in the high school auditorium, commencing at 8:15. There is to be an exceptional program offered, and those Kingstonians who have heard former concerts that have been given in this city under the direction of Miss Paulding will doubtless feel justified in spending the thirty-five cents admission to be charged. It is expected that the following program will be offered, although it is subject to change:

Praise Ye Jehovah Gounod
Glee Club.
Birds are Singing Thomas
Girls' Chorus.
Mammy's Hush a Bye Parks
Boys' Chorus.
Wyken, Blynken & Nod Bartlett
Girls' Chorus.
Gypsy Life Schuman
Glee Club.
If I Only Had a Check From Home. Adams
Solo and Boys' Chorus.
When Twilight Weaves Her Gentle Spell Beethoven
Girls' Chorus.
Auf Wiedersehen Romberg
Boys' Chorus.
Wake Miss Lindy Warner
Glee Club.
Ave Maria Abt
Solo and Girls' Chorus.
Song of the Vikings Fanning
Glee Club.
After the concert the gymnasium will be thrown open for dancing.

Maroon Staff.
Fred Van Eiten, the able editor-in-chief of the senior year book, "The Maroon," reports that his publication is coming along fine. The editor put out an excellent junior publication last year in the uptown academy, and therefore his merits and experience will do much to insure the success of this issue. The senior class chose the following to assist their editor: Local Editors—Goldie Bloom, Jesse Barton, Wilson LeFevre and George Greene. Literary Editors—Kathlene Snyder, Mary Donovan, Beth Osborn and Edward Van Winkle. Athletic Editors—Ruth Humphrey and Ray Terwilliger. The Business Manager is Samuel Peyer, and Alfred Schmid and Joe Hazen are the Advertising Editors.

Seniors Entrusted With May Day. The senior class will have charge of the May Day exercises this year, and it is said that already they have advanced many plans which they consider fitting to observe this eventful day of long standing and wide renown. Shakespearean pageants, drills and that sort of thing are being considered. There will, of course, be a May Queen, and the election for this position of honor and distinction will be held in a week or two.

Will There Be Track Meet? "It is possible that May Day was come and go without a track meet." This seems impossible but it is a strong possibility. Many students believe that such a precedent should not be established, and this year especially, for K. H. S. can boast of some fine material in this line this year. Besides the notable number of post graduates who are in school and who distinguished themselves on the track last year there is some crack new material from prep school. For instance, E. Gill and DuMont, who made brilliant records for themselves at Pennington and Pettit, and who are now both members of the class of 17, together with many others from both the senior and junior classes who are worthy of note.

To be sure there are obstacles in the way. Troy has declined to allow K. H. S. to enter the inter academy contest held in that city, her excuse being that Kingston is too far away, also the high school has no track at present and so forth and so on, but there is the athletic field where track meets have been held before this.

Juniors Challenge Seniors. The junior class is keen on a track meet, and hoping to arouse the fighting blood of the seniors on this matter they have issued a challenge to the senior class for a track meet and incidentally a series of three baseball games. This challenge is undoubtedly likely to result in track activities on May Day, and perhaps if the senior class feels unable still to work in a meet they will be willing to accept the co-operation of the rest of the school.

Student Council. The student council held a meeting Thursday and adopted a school pin design, and also elected William Winston as chairman of the boys' council to fill the vacancy left by Harold Bernstein. The die for the pins is being made, and the finished product is to embody a representation of the front view of the high school, the colors (maroon and white), and an arch made by the words "Kingston High School."

Campus Out Again. The Campus again gives promise of a semi-monthly appearance, and put in its appearance yesterday. For the first time in many months the debating club has charge of it now, and judging from the first issue it will lack no enthusiasm or success. This issue contains six pages of news, cartoons, jokes and personals.

New Pastor Pleases. The new pastor of Trinity Methodist Church, the Rev. P. C. Weyant, made a very favorable impression on the large congregations by which he was greeted on Sunday last. He is an able and forceful speaker of pleasing personality, and deeply interested in his work. Trinity Church is looking forward to an active work under his leadership which will undoubtedly prove to be of a type that will make for progress in all of the various branches of church work.

Thrift Propaganda.

The thrift propaganda undoubtedly will have the effect of making many people take greater care of their dimes and nickels. When the latter multiply into dollars the will power for saving dollars will have been formed in a way parallel to that by which physical strength came to the Greek hero who began by lifting a calf and lifted it every day till it became an ox.

To Clean Picture Frames.

A Girl of Tennessee

By DWIGHT NORWOOD

After the close of the war between the states certain young men of the north—a number of them had served in the Union army—thought that a fine opportunity offered to go south, buy some of the plantations that were to be had for a song and grow up with the country under the new system of free labor.

I was one of these deluded beings. I say deluded, for the south needed fully a decade to right itself after the scourge of war and the change from slave to free labor. However, this had nothing to do with my story. I had been a soldier during the war and had campaigned in the region of Tennessee which takes in the Cumberland plateau. An admirer of mountain scenery, I had fallen in love with this country and aimed when peace came to settle there.

One day I was riding along the base of the mountain, armed with drafts on Louisville with which to buy a small farm, when I overhauled a couple in a buggy, a man about thirty and a girl perhaps twenty. I made some inquiries of the man and judged at once from his want of the dialect of the region that he didn't belong there. The girl was evidently indigenous to the country, not only from her looks, but her manner of speech.

The man told me that he was bent on the same errand as I—he was looking for a farm. I was some time getting on to the relationship between him and the girl, but at last learned that the night before he had stopped at her father's house. In the morning when he continued his journey she said she wished to visit a friend in Chattanooga and insisted on going with him. Since there was a vacant seat in his buggy, he could not well refuse to take her.

For the sake of company I rode directly behind the couple and had ample opportunity to observe them. It soon became evident to me that the girl was not a welcome traveling companion to the man. An unlabeled "poor white" country girl, she could not talk on any subject that would interest him. Besides, something—I know not what—indicated that her presence troubled him. He was constantly making excuses for parting company with her, but they all failed to enable him to get rid of her.

Finally when evening came he told her that he was intending to bivouac for the night and she must find a house in which to sleep. She looked at me appealingly and said:

"Stranger, what you going to sleep?" "I don't know. Why do you ask?" "If you and he uns are going to sleep in the open reckon I might sleep near by."

I saw that this was an invitation in her crude way for me to constitute myself a chaperon, and I could not resist her appeal. I said I would be glad to go along with her and we stopped where there was water, and as each one of us had something eatable for a luncheon we ate our supper and soon after dark found soft spots on which to sleep. I had a blanket, which I offered the girl, but she declined it, wrapping a shawl about her shoulders instead.

Fuzzled as to the reason for the desire of the girl to stick to her fellow traveler, I lay awake thinking about it. Presently I heard the man breathing as if asleep. I thought I heard a sound come from where the girl was sleeping, some fifty feet distant. I looked in that direction and saw her silhouette against the sky line. Without the slightest sound she disappeared to the eastward, which was toward the mountain.

What did it all mean? The man had all day been trying to get rid of the girl, and now she had evidently shaken him. I debated in my mind whether I should notify him of her disappearance, but I had come to believe that there was more between them than appeared on the surface, and my sympathies were rather with her than with him. So I lay still and said nothing. After awhile I slumbered.

I am a light sleeper and presently was awakened by a movement of the man who was close beside me. He was getting up stealthily, and I saw in the dim light that he had his hand on a rifle.

"What are you going to do?" I asked. He slipped a hand on my mouth and whispered: "Don't wake that girl. She is a fine one and am going to capture a still a short distance from here on in the morning. She has suspected me from the night I stopped at her father's house and has stuck to me ever since. I fancy she thinks I'm going to trap some one in whom she has an interest. Keep still while I steal away."

"You're too late, my friend," I said. "The girl lit out some time ago." "As soon as he came to believe what I had told him he went over to where the girl had been lying and confirmed what I had said.

"She's beaten me," he said ruefully. "These country girls are not so stupid as they appear."

"Not where a lover is concerned. Tea to one you were after her best fellow."

"I reckon that's so. When I stopped at her home I was fool enough to ask if any of them knew the man I was after."

I went on to Chattanooga and on my return saw the girl again. She was very grateful to me for the part I had taken in her affair. She had just been married to the man she warned.

His Love Opportunity.

With all the humorists at large in this country, a mere paragon can never hope to be asked to go as a war correspondent, but some day they may exhaust all the other classes of writing folk and ask his opinion of Stubbfield's favorite pipe mixture. Milwaukee Journal.

Prize Package of Age.

Statistics have been furnished to prove that the college girl spends 51 per cent of her money upon necessities as against 8 per cent for pleasures and luxuries. With the face and figure of a Venus and the thrift and common sense of a Griselda, the college girl of the present is going to be the prize package of the age.

Hurley Crossroads.

Mrs. Susan Elmendorf is visiting her son in New York city.

Silas Elmendorf has eight fine young pigs a week old.

Frank Doto of Coeymans is stopping with Harry Freer and family this week.

Otis Davis of Lucas Avenue Heights enjoyed a ride through the Hurley Quagmire on the Lucas turnpike on Tuesday. People obliged to use this road nowadays are lovely looking specimens when arriving in town, besmeared and spattered with mud, fit pictures for Puck and Judge.

William Elvey is confined to his home with the grip.

Mr. and Mrs. George L. Shults of Wittenburg were week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. S. Elmendorf at the Elmendorf homestead.

R. P. O. Gricks and mother, who have been spending the winter in New York city, have arrived at their home on the Crossroad for the summer.

Fourth Binnewater.

Mrs. Weise is reported to be rapidly recovering her health at the Wauna Sanitarium in Kingston.

Chris Stokes has returned from a visit in Poughkeepsie.

Oliver Dietz is spending a few days in Kingston with Mrs. Bert Pine.

William Eselby spent Thursday in Kingston shopping.

Montgomery Dietz, who had Dr. Chandler perform an operation on his head, is recovering.

Miss Aneta Chambers and Arthur Rose went driving on Sunday last.

Mrs. L. D. Prall spent Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. Hayse on Lake Hill.

William Eselby has returned from Torrington, Conn., after spending a week with his son, Fred.

Mrs. Hayes spent Tuesday with Mrs. Thomas Chambers.

L. D. Prall was doing business in Hickorybush on Thursday.

Middle Hill.

The Misses Hardenbergh are placing a new roof on the Roseton.

Mr. Brodsky has been relaying the stone wall in front of his premises.

Seymour Yonker relaid the stone wall in front of his residence.

Mrs. John Gallagher spent Sunday with friends in Kingston.

Mrs. James A. Crawford and family have moved to New York city.

Mrs. William Steinhilber was to Kingston on Thursday.

Michael Scully sold a large load of hay on Thursday.

Mrs. Warcup received a consignment of 500 baby chicks on Monday.

Mrs. A. Kelly has William Birmingham painting her residence.

SHOKAN.

Shokan, April 6.—Oscar Ganter, who is employed in New York, spent Sunday with his family.

Roy Brower, who has been working for Winchester in New Haven, Conn., has returned and is preparing to move to Kerhonkson, where he has employment in John Van Kleeck's garage. Sorry to see you go, Roy.

Miss Bennett, who was going to Michigan for an extended visit with friends.

Mrs. Herman Bell, who has been seriously ill, enjoyed a drive to Ashokan Monday.

Elmer Bedell shipped a car load of chestnuts to the factory at Bix Indian Tuesday.

Mrs. Charles Graham and children, who have been spending a few weeks in town as guests of Mrs. Graham's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Bell, have returned to their home in Cameron, Ill.

Mrs. Fletcher Benjamin has returned after spending a few days at Arkville.

George Windrum, Granville Weeks, Clyde Winchell and George Dibble attended the pruning demonstration given by Manager Hook last Saturday at the farm of Supervisor Merrihew. No doubt our arbor-culturists found the trip worth while.

Harold Brower has finished plastering Burr Elmendorf's house.

Contractor Staub's big automobile truck is back on the job.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Vincent spent Sunday at Floyd Goldman's.

Ephraim Weeks bought a three-seated platform wagon at the Teas auction Wednesday.

The auction of Benj. Van Steenburgh's, which was held Tuesday, was fairly well attended, despite the rain. The live stock brought good prices, but much of the other goods went for a song. Auctions are of such frequent occurrence that people will not pay much for things, as they did in days gone by.

Alonso Haver of Samsonville was here Monday demonstrating a Dodge car, for which he is the local agent.

Robert Sever attended the Lasher auction at Woodstock last week.

Joseph DeWitt has been buying farming implements preparatory to the busy season at hand. Joe proudly proclaims himself a "back-to-the-lander."

Mrs. James Gordon, Sr., has returned from a trip to her home town, New York.

The family of Clayton Waters expect to move to Kingston some time this month.

Vincent & Sons of Port Ewen have the contract to build two summer cottages near William Long, year's house on lots which were formerly a part of the Ennist farm.

Donald Keyser, one of our poultry enthusiasts, has bought a new brooder at Canfield.

J. K. DuBois and Fred Weeks have finished the new roof on the parsonage barn.

Mrs. Charles Pace and children have returned after spending several weeks with relatives in Mt. Vernon.

The entertainment which was given in the church last week was not well attended, owing no doubt, to the fact that the two leading features had been previously presented in this section. We wonder what became of the Mother Goose play that occupied so much of the young people's time last summer and then was never staged? Something mysterious about that, don't you think?

Miss Ella Wyckoff of Pelham Manor spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Wynkoop.

Olive Sixty Years Ago.

April 15, 1854, snow fell to a depth of 14 inches. On Thursday, the 16th, 1857, there was a temperance address at Shokan by Mr. Farrah. The annual town meeting was held on Tuesday, April 2, 1850 at A. S. Hill's. N. W. Watson, Democrat, was elected supervisor by a majority of 123. On April 6, 1852, the whole Democratic town ticket was elected by an average majority of 100. Elizabeth Bloom died Tuesday morning, April 13, 1852, aged 22 years. The funeral was held next day at 1 o'clock. Rev. Mr. Dyckman, of the M. E. Church, conducted the services. Wednesday evening, April 4, 1860, the Benevolent Society held forth at the residence of Harriet Krom. As the night was rainy, the collection amounted only to $17. In Saturday evening there was singing school in the Shokan school house.

METTACAHONTS.

Mettacahonts, April 6.—Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hendrickson moved their household furniture and belongings to the Edward Van Vliet tenant house on the state road. A. Van Netten and John Van Denmark did the moving for them. We are sorry to see Mr. and Mrs. Hendrickson leave the place. They will be greatly missed. However, they are not so far removed that they may be among us occasionally. This is a great deal nearer Mr. Hendrickson's work at H. L. DeVoe's at Accord.

William Wood is so much better as to be doing light teaming for Jesse Osterhoudt at present.

Charles Bell will leave shortly for a fine summer position amid the picturesque surroundings of Lake Minnewaska.

Chester Wood, who has spent the winter at Ormond Beach, Florida, is on his way northward and is expected to arrive in town shortly. We suppose while we have been hibernating so closely by ice and snow for several months, Mr. Wood has been enjoying a very warm summer weather.

James Wood and George Helder have left for summer work at Lake Mohonk, where they have spent recent seasons.

Rumor says Mr. and Mrs. William Dingy and family will shortly move into one of the tenant houses of Warbolsky at Mill Hook, as they have left the employ of J. H. Baker.

Preston Enderly is contemplating a season spent out of town. Mr. Enderly has always worked in this vicinity, but has decided this spring to leave the environs of Old Mettaca-honts and the employment at J. H. Baker's and try his fortune by accepting a lucrative position out of town. Mr. Enderly will be very much missed by all.

Miss Roxie Krom and sister, Miss Orpha Krom, were pleasantly entertained on Tuesday for dinner at the home of their aunt, Mrs. Reuben Mackey.

Mrs. E. D. Markle entertained on Friday of the past week the following ladies: Mrs. R. Anderson, Mrs. Jacob Hornbeck, Mrs. W. F. Dann, Mrs. H. M. Burger, Mrs. Fred Hendrickson and daughter, Lulu, Miss Pearl Enderly, Mrs. Reuben Mackey, Mrs. Joseph Hendrickson, Mrs. S. E. Churchwell. An enjoyable day was spent.

Josiah Krom attended the funeral of his niece, Miss Dann, at Kingston on Tuesday.

Ell Osterhoudt is kept busy filling large orders for hatching eggs.

Virgil Wood was employed by Mr. Bedesky on Tuesday of this week.

Oscar Markle and Charles Bell are both kept busy with engine and saw diminishing the unsaved wood on their neighbors' wood piles.

Mrs. W. H. Markle and daughter, Miss Edna, spent Sunday at Mrs. E. D. Markle's.

A house party and dance combined was held at the home of Jason Bell on Wednesday evening. A fine time was reported by all.

The entertainments which were held at the school house on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings of last week were largely attended by people from this place and surrounding places and was pronounced the best given in this place in a long time. Everybody seemingly enjoyed the "Minstrels" and also the "Twins" kept them laughing. Many articles, such as cushions, aprons were displayed in their booths and credit is extended to Miss Sadie Simpson, who had charge of same, and to all the young people who worked so faithfully toward making the entertainments a success. The sum of $69.95 was taken in on both nights. We wish to thank the people who brought loads and helped make the entertainment successful.

Special singing will be rendered by the choir on Easter Sunday.

Josiah Krom attended the funeral of his niece, Miss Helena K. Dann, of Kingston on Tuesday.

STONE RIDGE.

Stone Ridge, April 6.—The people of this village were very sorry to hear of the death of Miss Edith Paley. The announcement of her death, coming directly after the news that she was improving, was a shock to every one. The funeral was held from her late residence on Thursday afternoon. Interment in Fairview cemetery.

The foundation for the new garage hall is completed and the contractor, Mr. Hotelling, of Hurley expects to begin work on the hall next Monday.

Grange meeting on Friday evening, April 7.

Mrs. Egbert Elmendorf is ill.

The entertainment of the Sunshine Mission Band on Tuesday, April 11 in the Reformed Church, this band of young people postponed this entertainment for a week so that the roads would be in condition to enable everybody to attend. Now don't disappoint them. There will be two dialogues, one entitled, "No Peddlers Wanted," with the following cast of characters:

Rockkeeper Lester Roosa
First Peddler Harry Southland
Rock Agent Stanley Roosa
Second Peddler Leonard Constant
The second dialogue is entitled, "The Wrong Box," and has the following cast of characters:

About Club Sandwiches

The club sandwich forms an ideal quick luncheon with a cup of chocolate or tea. It is a delicious after theater nibble. Moreover, it is easy to make in the dining room with the aid of a chafing dish or electric toaster. It has so many varieties that it can be served frequently without becoming monotonous.

To begin with, its foundation is a slice of hot buttered toast at the bottom and another at the top. Between these two slices there must be lettuce and mayonnaise and boiled or fried bacon. Besides these ingredients many other things can be used.

Perhaps what one may call the conventional club sandwich contains on the foundation slice of toast a crisp piece of lettuce, a spoonful of thick mayonnaise, a slice of chicken breast, two crisp slices of bacon, a slice of tomato, more lettuce and mayonnaise and the cover of toast.

Instead of the tomato a slice of tomato jelly may be used, or some shreds of sweet green or red pepper or sliced sweet pickles or sliced stuffed olives may be used.

Or else over the toast may be spread a mixture of chopped celery and mayonnaise, or chopped sweet pepper and mayonnaise, or chopped olives and mayonnaise.

It may also be used instead of the chicken with or without the bacon. Slices, boned and skinned and rubbed to a paste with mayonnaise, are good.

The lower slice of toast may be spread with a thin coating of pate de foie gras, then the chicken, then the mayonnaise can be added, then lettuce and the top slice of toast—with or without the slice of tomato.

ABOUT FLOUNCES.

How Skirts May Be Adorned a la Mode.

Artistic effects are achieved with skirts showing the uses of different colors and materials. For instance a dress in myrtle green, fallie trimmed with red and kolmsa fur has a two flounced skirt, upper flounce is green the lower one is black, peau de sole. The coat is also in black, peau de sole and it completely covers the green flounce. In another case a two flounced skirt will have a third flounce falling from the waist to the lower flounce of the skirt in the very plain material like a sash or not, sometimes plain, sometimes embroidered. The effect is very delicate and pretty, and the fashion of flounces generally is one which leaves a wide scope for variety and elaboration. A very young and pretty model shows a ruffled skirt in vertical lines, each line juxtaposed and finished off by a tiny rose.

THE PALM BEACH GIRL.

For Her Who Enjoys Surf Bathing At Winter Is This Cap.

Designed like a jib cap is the bathing hood in new style with a beaded pattern across the front piece.

THE AEROPLANE MODEL.

The ear covering is especially comfortable for her who enjoys driving, as it may be turned up when she leaves the brothers.

Welsh Rabbit.

Shave very fine or grate a good one half pound medium cheese. Set the cheese in a saucepan with two large cups of milk. When scalding, add one tablespoonful of butter. Mix one heaping tablespoonful of corn starch, a dash of cayenne pepper, one quarter of a teaspoonful of salt, one half teaspoonful of mustard and one half teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce, with a little cold water. Stir into scalding milk and cook about five minutes; then add the grated cheese. Serve on crisp buttered toast.

Creamed Tuna Fish in Chafing Dish.
Materials.—One can tuna fish, two tablespoonfuls butter, a tablespoonful flour, salt, cayenne and a little grated nutmeg, a cupful milk, a squeeze of lemon juice, a wineglassful of sherry.
Directions.—Open the can of fish some time before it is to be served. Melt the butter, add to it the flour, salt, cayenne and nutmeg. When smooth, add the milk, then the fish and lemon juice and lastly the wine. Cook five minutes and serve on crackers or toast.

JOHN REDMOND, LORD KITCHENER, QUEEN MARY & KING GEORGE, O.F.S.
KING GEORGE GIVES HALF MILLION DOLLARS TO WAR RD.
This, the latest picture of King George and Queen Mary, was made on March 1, when the king and queen visited the Irish Guards at Windsor and presented the soldiers with shamrock. King George has just commanded the Keeper of the Privy Purse to turn over £50,000 of his private fortune to the British treasury to be used in conducting the war.

The Only Thing They Ever Did.
John Brich's powers of sarcasm were almost untrained. Some of his sharpest utterances were against members of the nobility. When boats had been made of the nobility of a prominent family, that their ancestors came over with the Conqueror, he promptly replied was "I never heard that they did anything else."

Well Supplied.
An inveterate wit and punster asked the captain of a craft loaded with boards how he managed to get dinner on the passage. "Why," replied the skipper, "we always cook aboard."
"Cook a board, do you?" rejoined the wag. "Then I see you have been well provided with provisions this trip, at all events."—London Tit-Bits.

Alas! Symptoms.
"Asphodelia," said she has found herself last.
"Cough!" she said she talks about her starved, her mission in life and all that of thing."
"Why, yes," she said.
"We must up a dance at once. Asphodelia, linking too much."—Birmingham Herald.

What a Cornet Did

A Story of War in East Prussia

By F. A. MITCHEL

O hark, O hark! How thin and clear,
And thinner, clearer, farther going:
O sweet and far from cliff and scar
The horns of Eufonia faintly blowing!
Blow, let us hear the purple gins replying:
Blow, bugle, answer, echoes, dying, dying,
dying.

—Tennyson.

The killing and maiming of combatants are not all that is terrible in war. When the mailed fist is raised law, which has been the sole arbiter in the affairs of men, hides its face. The general commanding takes his place on the bench. But the general cannot even control his own troops. The victorious trooper frequently becomes a plunderer. When an army invades an enemy country those who have lived securely under the law flee before it as from an engulfing wave. And it matters not whether one is friend or foe; the soldier unrestrained by constant military discipline becomes a wild beast.

Paul Stanislaus, a Russian Pole, early developed a taste for music. When but eighteen years of age, being very poor, in order to make a living he enlisted in the band of a regiment stationed at Warsaw. The instrument he played was the cornet. At this he became so proficient that when the band played in the public gardens he was frequently selected to play a solo.

On one occasion when the band was playing the national hymn at a ceremony attending the reception of the czar Paul led with his cornet. His instrument, accompanied by a hundred other pieces, rang out in such clear and inspiring tones that the emperor's admiration was excited, and he sent the musician a present of 100 rubles.

When Paul Stanislaus left the band he took his instrument with him, and many a time some ceremony was made impressive by his rendition of the national anthem. Then would the Pole forget the dismemberment of his nation or dream of the day when its three parts—Austrian, German and Russian—would be again united under one independent government.

Stanislaus drifted northward and finally married and settled down within the border of East Prussia. There he worked a little farm, but so great a portion of the year was given to winter that there was not much time left in which to grow farm products, and there was little profit.

A family grew up about him. His wife was a good manager and made the most of the scanty income. Little by little, year by year, she added something to the family comforts, and what she and her husband had not money to pay for they made with their own hands. When a child was born to them, Paul would add an additional room to his little home, and in time there were six of these additions nestling up against the central building like so many chicks against the mother hen.

Then, too, there were frequent additions to the furniture. Paul was handy with tools, and, though he had never learned the trade, he was no mean cabinetmaker. Now it was a bed, now a crib, or, rather, a bunk for one of his children, now an easy chair, all made out of plain material, but strong and not rough. And as for quilts, the wife was as apt at saving odds and ends for the purpose as patching them together.

In this way the nest grew in size and in comfort, though so slow was the process that it was like the hands of a clock that are not seen to move. Paul and his wife loved their home because they had not received it all finished at the hands of some generous giver, but had made it all themselves through a term of years. As for the children, they loved it for the best reason in the world—because it was home.

There had been when the property was bought a small mortgage on it. From the first the couple put aside a certain sum each year, if it were only 20 rubles ($10), and slowly during a long term of years they had seen the amount they owed becoming smaller. At last it was reduced to 100 rubles, then 50, then 10. When the last 10 rubles were paid the couple invited their intimate friends to sup with them, and when all were ranged around the table Paul took the mortgage document and burned it before them. Then all drank health and prosperity to the happy family who owned their home and everything in it.

Amid the rejoicing a horseman rode up to the door and cried out:

"Are there any reservists here?"

"No. Why do you ask?"

"The Kaiser has declared war against Russia, and all reservists of the first line are called to the colors."

The happiness of the Stanislaus family was turned to anxiety. They were Russian Poles living in Germany. The boys were too young for military service, and the father was beyond the age for first line troops. But they lived on the border, on German territory, and the tide of battle was liable to sweep over them.

Day after day spark after spark lit new flames. Russia declared war against Germany. France, as Russia's ally, did the same. Germany hurried across the border into Belgium, which drew England into the fray. All was preparation, while troops were being moved to points for defense or attack. Germany, having hurled its first strength westward, gave the slow moving Russians on the east time to concentrate and take the offensive.

Then came the Russian drive into East Prussia. The army, a vast host, crossed the line by a route leading directly toward the Stanislaus home. They came with fire and sword, accompanied by the thunder of their guns. "We shall be swept away before the hurricane," cried Stanislaus. "All we have been gathering for so many years will be lost."

"You are a Russian subject," said his wife. "You have been musician in a Russian regiment. Can you not make them understand this?"

"We will be overrun by stragglers and pillagers. They will have no mercy."

One morning the devastating horde reached the Stanislaus home. They were moving to attack the Germans farther within the border. There was no fighting, but one wing of the army passed down a road not a hundred yards from the Stanislaus' home. A number of men bent on loot, seeing the comfortable looking house, with its additions and a vegetable garden beside it, broke away from the column and scudded along, bending low to the ground so as to escape detection by their officers. The family saw them coming. The father seized a gun, but put it back. The mother fell on her knees and began to pray. The children wrung their hands, and some of them sought places in which to hide. A dozen men entered the house and began to appropriate everything in sight. They were a savage lot, and soon all thought of what they were taking was overpowered by the occupants' fear that they would be murdered.

Stanislaus believed that if he could attract the attention of an officer he might secure protection. He started out for the purpose, but one of the troopers, probably realizing his intention, hurled him back.

Stanislaus' cornet, on which he had played when a member of a Russian military band, hung on the wall over a fireplace. An idea occurred to him for calling for assistance. Seizing the instrument, he began to play the Russian national anthem. Clear and solemn, the beautiful air rang out, passed through the open door, its vibrations sweeping over the land far and near.

At the first notes off came the head covering of every pillager. Then they began to drop such plunder as they held in their hands; then they unloaded their pockets, all the while their heads bowed reverently.

A general riding at the head of his staff reined in his horse and listened. A brass instrument needs distance. It is "thin and clear" when heard from afar, and its harsher tones are softened. The general recognized the hymn of his fatherland. He doffed his hat. His staff followed his example. Men marching in the ranks, hearing the hymn and seeing the general uncovered, took off their hats. When the last notes died away he said:

"There is only one man who can play the hymn as it has been played, that is Paul Stanislaus of the old—th regiment, in which I was once a captain."

Then, turning his horse's head toward the house from which the sounds emanated, he rode thither, followed by his staff.

The looters saw him coming, and by the time he reached the door they were standing at attention before it, dreading his wrath.

"Paul Stanislaus, where are you?"

"Here, general."

Stanislaus, his cornet in his hand, came out of the house and saluted.

"Do you recognize me?" asked the general.

"No, general."

"I have heard you play that cornet many a time when I was an officer of the—th regiment of the line at Warsaw and was present when you played it before the czar, and he sent you a gift. As soon as I heard it just now I knew that you were the musician."

"Many years have passed since I was one of the band of the—th, general. We have changed."

"Why did you just play it?"

"To call an officer. I need protection."

The general understood and looked at the men who stood trembling before him. He ordered one of his staff to march them away, then dismounted and went into the house. Seeing the confusion, he knew what had occurred. A table, on which were writing materials, stood near, and approaching it he wrote a safeguard which he handed to Stanislaus. Then he asked him to stand in front of the house and play again the Russian hymn.

Stanislaus did as requested, and as regiment after regiment marched past on the road below each burst into song, above which rang the clear tones of the cornet. When the anthem had been repeated again and again the general said to Stanislaus:

"You may be too old to fight, but you are not too old to inspire others to fight by the soul you put into music. Here are a hundred rubles to make up for the ruin done by these pillagers, who, I promise you, shall be severely punished. After you have repaired the damage done by them I desire that you follow the army and join me wherever I may be. You shall be with me at my headquarters, and before we go into battle you shall breathe the love of the fatherland into the souls of my men. I as their general am expected to inspire them to deeds of valor, but were I the god of war myself I could not move them as you can move them by the power of song."

While the general was speaking these words, Stanislaus and his family stood in respectful attention. When he had finished he put spurs to his horse and rode on.

Then father, mother and children clung to one another in an embrace. Then they all fell on their knees and gave thanks. Then—they began to clean up.

Explained. "Our air mattresses," said the doctor, "are filled in the months of April and May. That accounts for their remarkable resilient qualities."

"Is the air of those months better than others?"

"They are the spring months, you know."—Exchange.

Remembered Him. "Uncle George—Come here, Willie. Don't you know who I am? Willie—You bet I do! You are Sam's brother, who stayed here two months one time and never offered to pay a cent for board. Oh, yes; I've heard you speak of you often."—Indianapolis News.

Are you going to build, remodel or decorate?

Consider these facts! Plastered walls are cold and dreary, because plaster lets out the costly heat and lets in cold, wind and damp. It increases settling, and its unyielding nature causes it to crack and eventually fall.

makes warm, bright, cheery rooms. It is less than one-quarter the weight of plaster and a far better insulator, making the home cooler in summer and cutting winter fuel bills from 10% to 50%. It is guaranteed not to warp, buckle, crack, chip or fall. Easily applied—on new walls or over old.

SOME CAUSES OF SPRING FEVER

No Change in the Amiable Strike Situation at Cigar or Brush Factory—Employees State the Case From Their Standpoint.

No changes were apparent on the surface today in the strikes at the American Cigar Company and at the Herbert Brush Company. At the latter plant about 15 of the 100 men out returned to work while the cigarmakers claimed that they had nearly all the employees with them. It was said at the cigar factory offices that all of the help would be back Monday probably, as by that time the spring fever would have spent itself. The following statement has been received from a committee of cigar factory employees.

Editor Kingston Daily Freeman.
Dear Sir:—We hope you will give this letter space in the columns of your valuable paper. We do not wish the fair-minded people of the city of Kingston to labor under the impression that we are a discontented bunch of rowdies who do not want to work. At present there are about 250 employees, bunchmakers and rollers, out on strike. There are about 50 or 60 rollers and bunchmakers still working who would like to go out but the very thought of breaking pleasant relationship with their respective foremen keeps them working. It is expected, however, that they will join the strikers today or tomorrow. We do not bear any personal animosity towards the superintendent or any of the foremen.

All we ask is a square deal. The cost of living, shoes and clothes and many other necessities of life have increased in the past few years, but the wages, especially the cigarmakers, have remained at a standstill. Other cigar factories have raised their employees' rates per hundred without asking for it. At a meeting at Cook's Hall Thursday afternoon, the ladies and gentlemen present unanimously voted in favor of a five cent increase per hundred on all cigars and to stand united in their justifiable cause. The arbitration committee expect to meet the head officials of the American Cigar Co. in a day or so and present their demands. Anyone who has seen the smiling faces of the boys and girls on Broadway the past few days can see that they are a highly civilized, intelligent and respectable crowd of true blue Americans who know right from wrong, willing to work and work hard if they only get a square deal. We stand united and firm in our cause for a five cent increase and that all our boys and girls be taken back.

Yours for a square deal,
ONE OF THE BOYS ON STRIKE

MRS. ALFRED MEYERS
BRITISH GOVERNMENT KEEPS HUSBAND AS HOSTAGE WHILE SHE IS ON PAROLE.

San Francisco, April 7.—Mrs. Alfred Meyers, the wife of a German Samoan official, has been paroled by the British government and is bound by her word and honor not to attempt to reach her native home in Germany. To make her word to the British government doubly safe, her husband is held as a hostage in New Zealand, where practically the entire former German population of Samoa is interned. In company with her husband and about 250 others she was deported from Samoa aboard a British warship. She has just arrived here for a visit with friends.

A Curious Ball Game.

Theodore Roosevelt, writing in Scribner's of his Brazilian journeys, describes a curious game of ball played by the Pareis Indians, in which the head alone is used.

"There are, of course," he writes, "no such rules as in a game among civilized men, and I saw no disputes. There may be eight or ten or many more players on each side. The ball is never touched with hands or feet or with anything except the top of the head. It is hard to decide whether to wonder most at the strength and dexterity with which it is hit or batted with the head as it comes down through the air or at the reckless speed and skill with which the players throw themselves headlong on the ground to return the ball if it comes low down.

"Why do they not grind off their noses I cannot imagine. Some of the players scarcely ever failed to catch and return the ball if it came in their neighborhood and with such a vigorous toss of the head that it often flew in a great curve for a really astonishing distance."

Clever Reasoning.

Filial Reports.

Richard Brinsley Sheridan, who was always distressed for money, was one day looking his face with a dull razor when he turned to his eldest son and said:

"Tom, if you open any more oysters with my razor I'll cut you off with a shilling."

"Very well, father," said Tom, "but when will you get the shilling?"

Suspicious.

"Let me show you 'Love Letters of Wise Men,'" said the clerk in the book emporium.

"Are they signed?" asked the cautious bookworm.

"Yes, indeed; every one of them."

"Then they must be forgeries. Wise men never sign their names to love letters."—Chicago News.

Evidently In Love.

"I told that boy," remarked the teacher, "to remain after school and write some word 100 times. But I don't think it was any great punishment."

"Why not?"

"I noticed that he wrote the word 'Rosie' 100 times with an ecstatic smile."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

popular. This is cut loose, belted, short sleeved, white shapely in lines. A bit of embroidery finishes the buttoned front, the collar edge and the cuffs.

For Spring Brides.

A dainty and acceptable gift to tuck into the bride's traveling bag as a little surprise to her when her destination is reached is a boudoir set of cap and ribbon slippers. The whole outfit may be folded very small in its tissue paper wrapping and will take up scarcely any room at all in the bag—not as much as the handful of rice which is sometimes slipped in by a mischievous bridesmaid. The cap is an ordinary round cap of white point a cap, lined with fine white lace and trimmed with the best quality satin ribbon in pale blue or pink shade. A bow of the ribbon is caught against the cap with a tiny rhinestone buckle.

The slippers have very flexible soles, cut from pale blue or pink goldenrod satin; two layers of satin for each sole, and a thin layer of cotton batting may be slipped between if one fancies a little thicker sole. Two inch blue or pink satin ribbon is sewed around the edge of the sole and fastened together at the back. About two inches of the ribbon are gathered along the upper edge over cord elastic to hold the slipper on the heel.

Ragged Sailors.

Materials.—Two cupsful flour, two teaspoonfuls baking powder, one-half cupful sugar, an egg, one-half teaspoonful salt, three tablespoonfuls butter, one-half cupful chopped nuts, two-thirds cupful milk.

Directions.—Sift the flour, salt and baking powder, rub the butter in; then add sugar and nuts. Mix to a soft dough with the egg and milk, roll out thin and sprinkle with sugar. Roll up with the sugar inside, cut in slices three-quarters of an inch thick, place on a greased baking tin, brush over with beaten egg and bake about fifteen minutes.

Attractive Suits.

Every woman who can possibly afford it will invest in one of the attractive suits of pongee, poplin or silk homespun. They are a delightful combination of style and utility and, though rather high priced, are well worth the cost. They are to be had in white, cream and oyster white, tan, brown and biscuit Dutch, navy and gray blue, besides different tones of green and gray.

What Can Be Done Here in Women's Apparel at Popular Prices

SOME TIME AGO when fabrics were not as scarce as they are today and when colors were less rare we planned this event as one of the features of the spring season.

Our arrangements were made with a noted maker of Suits. We chose the fabrics from his stocks—ordered him to put in these Suits tailoring of Up-To-Date Co.'s standards—selected the models from among the best evolved this year.

Now the Suits have arrived and they are better even than we thought they would be. In view of the rising costs of well made clothes they are amazingly good values, but since we made our plans to sell them at these prices we shall carry them out.

George Fawcett with "The Corner" Willard Mack in

TRIANGLE-KEYSTONE

"Fatty and Mabel Adrift"

One man's remorseless greed and the nemesis that overtook him in the form of one of his victims, is told in the face-Triangle play, "The Corner." David Waltham heads a syndicate that corners the food supply of the nation. John Adams loses his little savings in a "run" on a bank, and his job as an engineer. He is sent to jail for stealing bread for his starving family.

In "FATTY and MABEL ADRIFF" Roscoe Arbuckle as a farm boy and Mabel Normand as his sweetheart get married and go to spend their honeymoon by the sea. A rival of Fatty tries to break into the house, but is chased away by Fatty's dog, Fido.

Eighteenth Century Dandies.
In the early part of the eighteenth century it was a common thing in London for a man of fashion to spend several hours a day with his valet, among the many quaint operations being "the starching of the beard and the proper perfuming of garments, the painting of the face and anointing with oils, tinctures, quintessences and pomatums." It is even said that some of the dandies of the time bathed in wine and milk "for the preservation of their complexions and the rejuvenation of their energies."

LIVING AND DYING.

DO SOME DEEP THINKING.

Help Your Mind by Going into a "Brown Study" Once in a While.

"If the 'brown study' were more often cultivated many people would be happier and more clear thinking would be done," says the London Lancet. "It is in such a state that truths suddenly and clearly upon the unclouded intelligence. It is in such a state that mighty actions are conceived, poems born at a stroke and mankind enlightened through the enlightenment of the individual."

"In this state of mind there is such a concentration of mental energy that the body is ignored. The mind, on the other hand, is so working upon the subject which concerns it, is so intent upon its own affairs, that the external world is obliterated, and any bodily discomfort that may have been pre-existing is now negligible and unnoticed." The Lancet says the relationship between mental activity and the bodily state is not realized with sufficient frequency or with sufficient thoroughness by the European of today. "The average man is too engrossed with his bodily pampering, and in caring for the needs of the body he neglects the needs of the mind."

FRANKLIN AND PROVERBS.

Some of Poor Richard's Sayings That Were Very, Very Old.

In an editorial written not long ago we referred to the proverbs of Poor Richard, and looking over the list of these quoted it is remarkable to notice the length of the genealogy of most of them.

To prove that there was nothing new left for any man to say was the joy of Abraham Hayward's life, and he might have preached, and preached and preached, a sermon on this point with reference to Poor Richard.

"God helps those who help themselves," for instance, was first said by Aeschylus, unless some one said it before Aeschylus. "He that goes a borrowing goes a sorrowing" is to be found in George Herbert's collection, which preceded that of Franklin by about a couple of centuries, and it was apparently coined or first recorded by Dr. Thomas Tusser, and none other.

"Never leave that till tomorrow which you can do today," is a very bad rendering of Cervantes' delightful "In the street of By and By you come to the house of Never," while the old saying about experience originated, of course, in the famous "Experientia docet" of Tacitus—Christian Science Monitor.

Madagascar.

The great island of Madagascar, in the Indian ocean, lying off the east coast of Africa, was officially recognized as a French colony in 1896 after a war of occupation. The majority of the natives are not Africans, the Malayan element predominating in their greatly mixed blood. Of the total population of more than 2,500,000 by the last census, the Hovas, the dominant race, numbered about 850,000, and they are regarded as belonging to the Malayan stock.

The Sakalavas, whose negro affinities are strongly pronounced, rank next in numbers, and besides other indigenous races there are many persons of Arab and Indian descent. The seat of the government is at Tananarivo, which has a population of about 60,000.

Nature's the Healer.

The influence of the forms and sections in nature is so powerful to man that in its lowest functions it seems to lie on the confines of commodity and beauty. To the body and mind which have been cramped by nervous work or company nature is medicinal and restores their tone. The tradesman, the attorney comes out of the din and craft of the street and sees the sky and the woods and is a man again. In their natural calm he finds himself. The health of the eye seems to demand a horizon. We are never tired so long as we can see far enough.—Bancroft.

Tale of a Lost Engagement Ring

By ETHEL HOLMES

"What do you mean, Clara, by associating with that thief Ralph Cummings? Do you wish to be ostracized by all your friends?"

A singular expression came over Miss Rathbone's face, an expression that cannot be described, though some idea of it may be formed by an understanding of what caused it.

"That thief, as you call him, is my fiancé."

"Your fiancé?"

"Yes, we will be married next month. I shall acquaint you with the story attending Ralph's being considered a thief, after which you will be able to form an opinion of my reasons for marrying a man so branded. You are my sister and have a right to know them."

"Why may not all the world know them?"

"That you will understand when you have heard the story. When the Tophams gave their house party the episode occurred which branded Ralph as a thief. You were not there; I was. One afternoon all the automobiles on the place were got out, and the whole party was taken on a ride. I wore a short astrakhan jacket with a pocket on each side. Of course we were plentifully supplied with robes. When we returned, before taking off our wraps Alfred Topham asked us into the dining room to 'warm up,' as he expressed it. We all gathered around the sideboard and were warming up when a servant stepped up to Alf and handed him a little box that had come by express during his absence on the auto ride. We all knew that Alf had been attentive to Evelyn Mansfield, and one of the men very indelicately cried out: 'It's the engagement ring. Let's see it, Alf!'

"Alf opened the box and took out a ring set with a ruby between two diamonds. It was passed from one to another for inspection while the men continued to warm up. We spent some fifteen or twenty minutes in the dining room, and when we were about to separate Alf sang out: 'Who's got my ring?'

"Every one looked at every one else, but no one produced the ring. For a time it was supposed that it would be forthcoming, but since it did not appear Alf's brows began to knit. We all joined in a search for it, on the floor, under the furniture. The ring was not found. The matter began to look serious. Had some one of the guests purloined it? Alf, being host, of course could not suggest such a thing, but his chum, Ned Thurston, presently said: 'I offer myself to be searched, and I daresay that all of you will volunteer for the same thing.'

Everybody volunteered except Ralph. He said that he must demur to such a process. We were all supposed to be ladies and gentlemen and it would be an insult to each and every one of us to be searched."

"I took the party some time to digest what he had said, but the prevailing opinion was against it. Alf settled the matter by saying that he would rather lose the ring than put an indignity on any guest of his and forbade the search. Nearly every one considered Ralph's objection a virtual admission of guilt. It was believed that he had taken the ring, not foreseeing that he would so soon be caught with it on his person, and was obliged to choose between the course he took and full exposure. He did not wait to receive the cold shoulder, but left during the afternoon."

The blow fell as hard on me as it did on him. I had received nearly all his attention while at the Tophams, and the announcement of our engagement was expected before the party broke up. I didn't know what to do or say in the matter, so I took no course whatever, declining to express an opinion. But it was not pleasant for me to remain after what had occurred, and I made an excuse to go away the next day. They were all very nice to me, urging me to stay it out."

"Soon after my arrival at home I was called to the telephone, and Ralph spoke to me. 'Have you found Alf Topham's ring?' he asked."

"Have I found a ring? Do you mean to accuse me of being the thief?" "Look in the pocket of the jacket you wore on the auto ride. I have hoped you had found it. God grant it's there!"

"I was thunderstruck. On entering the dining room after the ride my jacket being too warm for the heated room I had taken it off and laid it on a chair in a corner of the room. Telling Ralph to hold the wire, I ran to a closet in my room, thrust my hand into the pocket of my astrakhan jacket and took out the ring."

"Running back to the phone, I told Ralph what I had done. He begged me not to utter a word to any one about finding the ring till I saw him. He would come right over."

"And now, Belle, I shall tell you how the ring got into my pocket only on your promise never to reveal it without my permission."

"I give it."

"You know you warned me against Rebecca Townsend."

"I did."

"Ralph, while the others were intent on warming up, saw Beck put the ring in the pocket of my jacket. Ralph saved me from her venom by taking the blame himself."

HARDEST PITCHER TO MAKE HIT AGAINST

Three Famous Big League Pitchers.

Grover Alexander not only led the Major league this year as the hardest pitcher to score against, but was the hardest to make a hit against. The great Phil chucker held opponents to a batting average of .178. When it is taken into consideration that a good hitter is expected to bat at least .250, the tightness of Alex's work is easily realized.

Only one batter in about every six that faced Grover plucked his goods for a safe drive.

The real leading pitcher in the American league was Walter Johnson, and he was rated the king of hurlers until Alex had his big year. Johnson was hit for 214 average. One batter in less than each five was able to hit the Washington smoke artist.

Joe Wood held opponents to a smaller number of runs than Johnson and ranks at the top of the American league, but was in a much smaller number of games, so the title of leading pitcher belongs to Johnson. Wood was touched for .216 average by opposing batters.

There is no doubt that Johnson has more speed than Alexander, but the figures also show that Johnson, who was said to be slipping last season, just because he got a few more beatings than usual, is strong.

have played with the Phillies. Bob Allen was classy 25 years ago, and one year he made a record for chances accepted by a shortstop which was not broken until 1914, when Maranville made a new mark.

Then along came Monte Cross, who didn't have to doff his cap to any shortstop when he was a Quaker. Mike Doolan was the third on the list, and now comes Bancroft.

FRED TENNEY ACTS QUICKLY

Decision of Former Giant to Get Into Newark International Club Was Sudden One.

Fred Tenney's decision to buy into the Newark ball club was a sudden one, according to a New York story. Fred had gone to New York to attend the anniversary reunion. He dropped into the Waldorf and met old friends. "Well, what's doing?" he inquired of one of them, "and how are all the old boys?"

"Well," someone remarked, "the International league is being reorganized. The Newark club looks like a good buy. I understand Jim Price is trying to get it."

"Price?" said Tenney, reflectively. "Do I know him? Wasn't he a sporting editor or writer when I was here with the Giants?" "Yes," came the answer. "He was."

"Show him to me," said Tenney. "I'd like to see him."

Jim Price was sitting down at one end of Peacock Alley and Fred went down to talk to him. A day later came the announcement that the two had joined forces and bought the Newark franchise.

Passed Through Many Wars.

Bob Ezelle, the veteran umpire, who will start his thirty-first year in harness this season, has been through all of the baseball wars, from the Union-Association conflict to the late Federal league affair.

BASEBALL STORIES

Tom Downey, who once was with the Phillies, has announced his retirement from baseball.

Stallings is out with a prediction that the Braves will win the National league pennant this year.

Jimmy O'Neill of Minooka has been sold by the Boston Americans to the Buffalo club of the International league.

This is Roy Hartzell's sixth year South with the New Yorks. "And it's going to be my best, too," said the veteran.

Bill Luyster, the former Hartford pitcher, will be field captain of the Lawrence club, under Jesse Burkett, this season.

Nick Altrock will this year, as heretofore, have practical charge of developing the recruit pitching material of the Nationals.

Joe Riggert will chase flies in center field for Mike Kelley's St. Paul team in the American Association, again this season.

Freddy Thomas, the New Orleans recruit, is said to have the edge on the other third base candidates for the Cleveland team.

E. A. Duffy, last year's premier hurler of the Youngstown club, will wear a Grand Rapids uniform in the Central league this season.

Ralph Capron, who, it is recalled, had a brief trial with the Phillies several seasons ago, has retired permanently from the diamond.

Jimmy Burke, one of Hughey Jennings' many assistants, is endeavoring to make Grover Loudermilk resort to curve balls this summer.

Marty Berghammer, the Pittsburgh Fed, who is to play with the St. Paul team next year, is a classy infielder, according to Joe Tinker.

The release by Salt Lake of the veteran pitcher, Jack Killiam, probably means he is through. He was let go to make room for Tom Hughes.

One of the innovations of the new Eastern league provides for admission free—except grand stand—for ladies on all days except Saturdays and holidays.

John Bates, who played in the Richmond outfield last year after his release by the Federals of Baltimore, will be with the Baltimore Orioles this year.

Harry Damrau, the Harlem third baseman, whom Connie Mack released recently to Raleigh of the North Carolina league, will very likely get a trial with Richmond.

Bobby Veach regards J. Weldon Wyckoff as one of the six greatest pitchers he ever faced. Wyckoff wants to make 150 other batsmen think the same thing this year.

An Ancient Mariner's Tale

By F. A. MITCHEL

The bells were tolling in a fishing village where I was temporarily stopping. On a wooden bench facing the ocean sat an old man, and I, having time on my hands, sat down beside him. I asked him the cause of the tolling, and he said that a sea captain who had long been a resident of the place had died and was being buried. I remarked on the dismal effect of the strokes, each stroke following the one before after a long interval in painful regularity.

"You think that a dismal sound, sir?" said the old man. "What would you think if you heard a bell a-tollin' for the dead that had been rigged by themselves for that particular purpose? In this yere case a sexton is pullin' on the rope; in the case I'm talkin' about the dead was a-tollin' the bell."

I looked aside at the old man curiously. There was something about him to indicate that he had been a sailor and a light in his eye that caused me to wonder if he were not an Ancient Mariner with a tale to tell. Though the light did not exactly indicate insanity, the fact of his speaking of the dead tolling their own funeral bells looked suspicious. I asked him to explain, and he did so as follows:

"When I was a youngster I sailed from this port every two or three years for the east. There was no Suez canal in them days, and we always went around the Horn or the Cape. On one of them voyages when we was in the Pacific what I'm goin' to tell you happened. The Pacific is so big that it's kind o' lonesome. When a pussan has seen nothin' but water for a month and nary a ship or sighted land, even a sailor will sometimes feel as if he's lost in never endin' space."

"One night when we'd had reason to feel that way I was one o' the watch, and, sailin' along in the darkness—there was neither moon or stars—I thort I heard the faint sound of a bell. I listened hard and heard it again. When I heard it a third time I asked one o' the watch if he heard it too. He listened and said he did. Then I knowed it wasn't my fancy."

"One after another the rest o' the watch heard the sound. It wasn't regular; the strokes came any way. There wasn't no bell at sea that ever made such sounds except a bell buoy. But we was in the middle o' the Pacific ocean, where there wasn't no need of a bell buoy. And yet the strokes kept comin', sometimes near together, sometimes far apart, sometimes heavy, sometimes light, and in that big ocean o' blackness atop and below they was awful melancholy."

"Either we was movin' toward the sounds or they was movin' toward us or maybe both. Anyway they was growin' plainer. The ole man come on deck all o' a sudden. He'd heard 'the tollin' and couldn't make it out. It drifted past us in the darkness, soundin' clear for while then growin' fainter astern. The ole man couldn't bear to lose it without knowin' what it was and give an order to put the ship about and stand by or follow if needed till dawn, which was a couple o' hours off. So we did, and durin' them two hours, the dolefullest I ever experienced, we kept within the sound o' that bell."

"Mornin' come at last, and a couple o' miles away we saw somethin' black, which, as the light grew, turned out to be a dismantled ship. She was a-rollin' and a-plungin', and every time she rolled or plunged we heard that solemn tollin'. That's what we'd been hearin'—the wreck's bell."

"The old man allowed that she was a derelict with no one aboard of her and her bell rope had rolled away or become unfastened. We sailed up to within a short pull of her, and the second mate boarded her. I help' one o' the boat's crew to take him there. Her decks were awash, and it was plain there was nothin' alive on her before we got to her. We went on to her deck for'ard, which was a little higher than the stern, and looked around, but we didn't go below. One o' the men looked down a hatch, and his report was not encouragin' for us to go down among the dead men, and we let 'em alone."

"Well, now, I told you that I'd known a case where the dead toll'd their own funeral bell. This was it. The crew, knowin' they was doomed, had nailed a board up near the bell and had painted on it a message—All hope gone. The ship's bell will toll our requiem."

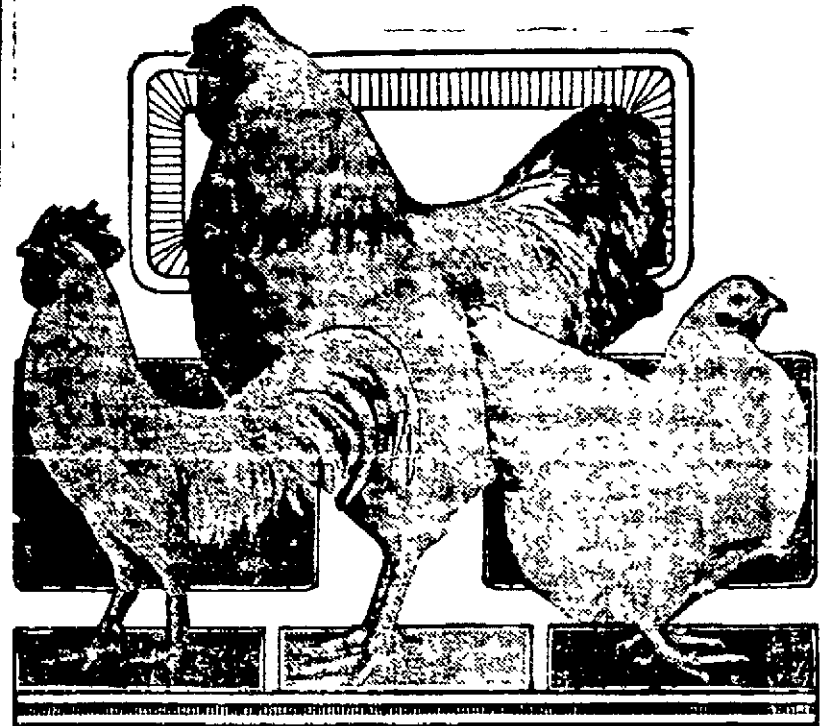

"They had cut away the bell rope entirely. 'We'd brought a blast with us to sink the ship, and we put it where it would do the work, but the ole man, fearin' we might fail, had ordered the gate on no account to leave that bell a-tollin' to give persons on other ships the shivers. We'd brought axes with us, of course, and before firin' the blast we chopped away the bell's supports. And, would you believe me, sir, when it rolled down on to the deck it sounded like a dyin' wail."

"'Heave the cursed thing overboard!' yelled the mate."

"We did that too, and when it struck the water it sounded like a dead man's last gasp."

My man had proved a veritable Ancient Mariner, and with as gruesome a tale I was glad to see that he had finished, then, muttering something like thanks for his story, I left him. Fortunately for me, as I did so the tolling of the funeral bells ceased.

TWELVE DISTINCT CLASSES OF CHICKENS

Columbian Wyandotte, White Leghorn and White Wyandotte.

(By RUPERT L. STEWART, New Mexico State College.)

"What is the best breed of poultry?" This is a question that is so often asked that a few words by way of explanation might not be amiss.

In the first place there is no such thing as "the best breed" for all locations and conditions. There are so many things that enter into the selection of a breed of fowls that one can readily see how utterly impossible an accurate answer is to so general a question.

In the second place there are some twelve distinct classes of chickens, and in each class there are from three to six breeds, and these breeds divided into from six to twelve varieties. Each class, breed, or variety has some points that make it particularly well adapted to the purpose for which it is intended. And right here lies the important point in deciding upon the kind of poultry to keep. First of all decide whether you are to raise chickens for eggs, meat, or both, and your problem is more than half solved.

There are three classes of chickens that the farmer needs to consider in selecting his farm flock, viz:

(a) Asiatic class, including the Brahmas, Langshans, and Cochins, which are large in frame, rather coarse and fairly clumsy, somewhat unproductive, exceedingly broody in temperament, but make poor mothers because of their clumsiness. As meat producers they are not very popular because they are heavy eaters, they are, however, good as heavy roasters. The Brahmas are the most popular breed of this class.

(b) American class, which includes the Plymouth Rocks, Wyandottes and the Rhode Island Reds. This is a dual-purpose class, having reasonably good production and excellent meat qualities. They are hardy, attractive, and have good maternal qualities. The Plymouth Rocks are the most popular breed generally, but all of the three breeds in this class are of wide distribution. The Orpington breed belongs to the English class but has the same general characteristics as the breeds in the American class.

(c) The Mediterranean class includes the Leghorns, Anconas, Minorcas, Hamburgs, Spanish, Andalusians, etc. This is distinctly the egg laying class, and are active, prolific, nervous, small, non-broody but very hardy. The White Leghorns are the most popular variety in this class. They lay a white egg of medium size and reach the period of production earlier than any other class of birds. In other words, the White Leghorn hen is the most practical egg laying machine that we have today.

BUYERS DISLIKE SCALY LEGS

Unsanitary Disease Renders Plumpest of Chickens Difficult to Sell—Grass Range Helpful.

The unsightly poultry disease, known as scaly legs, is exceedingly injurious to the marketability of chickens, making them objectionable sights to buyers. However, it is extremely contagious, one diseased fowl being enough to infect an entire flock in short order. This information should be especially interesting to South Carolina poultrymen, since the extension poultry husbandman of Clemson college states that he has seen more of the scaly-leg disease in this state than anywhere else he has ever been.

The disease appears only on the legs of fowls and is caused by the ravages of a mite which bears the name sarcoptes mutans. It is more likely to be found where fowls are kept in a small yard or on the bare ground. A good grass range is helpful in overcoming the disease.

To treat scaly legs, thoroughly cleanse the legs by washing with hot water, soap, and a handy brush. Dry them and immerse them in a solution of equal parts of coal oil, (kerosene) and cottonseed oil. "Treat the fowls' legs in this way twice daily for a few days and then once daily until the shanks resume their natural appearance."

GOOD TREATMENT FOR COLDS

Wheezing or Difficult Breathing of Fowl May Be Doctored With Lard and Turpentine.

Before you shut up the poultry house for the night, especially in bad weather, listen for any chance wheezing or difficult breathing. If you hear anything of the kind locate the fowl immediately and put it by itself in some well sheltered nook. Never leave a fowl of this kind with the whole flock.

Colds are catching in fowls as well as man. A first good doctoring with warm lard mixed with half turpentine, and a little coal oil added, will often be all the doctoring needed to rout the wheezing or rattling.

For a grown fowl give a teaspoonful of this three times the first day and grease the throat outside with the same preparation.

Dust the Hens Occasionally. Hens should be dusted with insect powder occasionally, but the presence of a good dust bath will make these necessary occasions far fewer. Mix about one pound of powdered sulphur with each bushel of dust for the best results.

Very Few Sick Fowls. The poultry breeder who studies the condition of his fowls and gives them comfortable surroundings is the man who succeeds and has very few sick fowls.

KEEP THE LAYING HENS BUSY

Fowls With Long Toenails Are Seldom Good Egg Producers—Keep Birds in Condition.

The success of egg production depends largely upon the activity of the bird. The reason the Leghorns excel in egg production is largely because they keep themselves in good physical condition. They exercise. The hen that is inactive and shows long toenails is seldom a good producer. This hen that is first off of the roost in the morning, keeps busy during the day and is last to go to roost at night is the profitable hen.

Some birds have the disposition to take exercise, others have to be forced. This is especially true of the heavier breeds. Strains of Rocks and other breeds are inclined to be lazy, and in a short time get so fat that they cannot produce eggs in satisfactory quantities. The circulation of blood to the ovary is restricted by the excessive fat. This unquestionably interferes with the normal functioning of the ovary and reduces egg production.

Exercise can best be encouraged by not overfeeding. The poultry house should be bedded with a foot or more of straw and the grain buried in this. The skill of the poultry feeder is tested by the manner in which he compels the hens to exercise.

Overfeeding causes inactivity, which will be manifested by few holes being dug in the straw. Egg production is quite largely dependent upon keeping the birds in condition. In summer it can be encouraged by sowing the yards and letting the hens dig up the grain.

BEST RESULTS FROM LAYERS

Wisconsin Expert Recommends Animal and Ground Food, With Generous Supply of Green Stuff.

"Animal food, ground feed and a generous supply of green stuff produces the best results for laying fowls," says J. G. Halpin, head of the poultry department of the University of Wisconsin.

An experienced poultryman says that when his hens and chickens have had access to charcoal he has never had a case of bowel trouble in his flock.

Watch for Slight Colds. Keep a sharp look out for "slight colds." Give light doses of epsom salts in mash or in drinking water. Make sure of dry floors and litter, plenty of air, but no drafts and—let the sunshine in!

Fancy Eggs. Eggs are "fancy" when fresh, clear and full bodied; when shells are sound, clean, bright and of uniform color; when they weigh 24 ounces or more to the dozen. It pays to produce and market fancy eggs.

Indus- trial Alcohol moved in an orderly manner, opening at 167 1/2, advancing 1/2, and then yielding to 167. Bal- win Locomotive was in good demand, rising 1/2 to 106, and an advance of 1/2 was made in Butte and Superior. Marine preferred moved up 3/4 to 77 1/2, but lost this gain in the next few minutes. The common opened unchanged at 21 1/4. Steel common was unchanged at 85 1/4. Anaconda opened 3/4 lower at 86 1/4, but mod- erate gains were made in other cop- per shares. An unsettled tone prevailed in the late afternoon. Room traders were aggressive sellers and further sub- stantial losses were noted in many issues. Crucible Steel fell to 80 1/4, and further losses of a point were noted in many other active speculatives. Steel common sold at a loss of a point to 84 1/4. The Marine is- sues were heavy and declines of fractions to a point were noted in many of the low priced industrials. The tone at the close was irregu- lar. Specialties declined sharply, then rallied. Industrial Alcohol fell two points to 163 and then im- proved to 161 1/4. Steel common sold at 84 1/4, later moving up to 84 3/4. SMOOTH YOUNG SWINDLERS.

Strand Shopgirl Flimflammed Out of $5 in Making Change.

Ralph Mann, the Strand fruit deal- er, was indignant this morning over the meanness of a couple of smooth young men who shortchang- ed Mr. Mann's sister-in-law, Anna Afiron, Thursday night in skilful fashion. One of the pair proffered a ten dollar bill for a bottle of candied cherries and his change was given him. He then asked for five one dollar bills and then quickly de- manded a ten for a five which the young girl handed over. Immediately she realized her mistake but by that time the young men had the door closed and were hurrying down the street.

Short change artists of this type have not been active around here in some time. The pair are believed to have left the city.

Twelve years ago Arnet Brothers opened a clothing store in the Cashin building at the corner of Strand and Hasbrouck avenue, and Mr. Kelsch went with them and had charge of the store. Some time ago the Arnets leased the Cordts building on the op- posite corner and opened it as a first class clothing store.

The building vacated by them has now been leased by Jacobson Brothers and after alterations were made has been opened as a clothing store. Mr. Kelsch will have charge of the new store.

MENKE'S DAILY
SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, April 7.—A revival of the ancient sport of baseball will occur next week in the northern section of the United States.

This game was very much in favor with the populace before the time of the Big Show, and the contests usually were attended by large crowds. These gatherings seemed to be on terms of familiarity with the combatants and frequently exhorted the home players to execute valiant deeds. If they accomplished them, they were rewarded with approving shrieks of "Atta boy," "Hooryay," "He's Some Kid." However, when the players failed to fulfill the orders of the populace, or erred in their play they became at once the target for violent verbal attacks.

It was the invariable custom in the olden days for the populace to form a fearful hatred for an inoffensive appearing person known as the umpire. He was not a combatant and did not favor either side. His place in the sport merely was to give certain rulings and to require that the laws of the game were upheld. Despite this the folks frequently demanded that he be killed, either by lynching or other means. On many occasions, the umpire was subjected to a bombardment of bottles which earlier had contained cooling beer, a favorite beverage of that era.

The game is played on a large field known as the diamond. Just why it should bear such a peculiar name is a mystery, as the area is flat, it does not sparkle and it has no facets. The field is made up of two parts. One is called the outfield and the other the infield. The infield contains three sacks of canvas, known as bases, and the home plate, made of rubber. The distance from one base to the other is nearly 90 feet, so that a person making the circuit from home plate around the bases and back to home plate again covers approximately 360 feet.

Nine men compose a team. The object of the contest is for one side to score more runs than the other. To score a run means to complete the circuit from home plate without being put out. A white, round object, known as the ball, is used. This has a cork center, is wound tightly with yarn and then covered with horsehide. Large wooden sticks, called bats, also are used and the players wear heavy leather mittens to protect their hands from the impact of the ball when it is driven by the bat.

The pitcher occupies the most important position on the team. It is his duty to throw the ball and twist it so as to deceive the batter, who stands at home plate. The batter is allowed three swings at the ball. In case he fails to hit it he becomes a fan victim and must cease his batting endeavors until his turn comes again. The catcher is the man who stands behind the plate and traps all the balls that the batters fail to hit. The other players are designated as infielders and outfielders, according to their stations in the field. All the players are assigned to their positions by a manager, who is the supreme power as far as his own team is concerned.

The teams alternately indulge in "ins" and "outs." When a team is on the "ins" it means that it is taking its turns at the plate, attempting to smite the ball. The other team—the one in the field—is then having its "outs." When a team is having its "ins" the batter tries to drive the ball out of reach of the opposing men. In case he does he is credited with a hit. As soon as he hits the ball he starts to run for first base and continues running until he has completed the circuit, or until the opposing players have retrieved the ball and thrown it to some base ahead of him. In such case, the batter stops at the base nearest to him, and waits there, hopeful that the next batter also will score a hit, thus enabling him to advance nearer to home plate.

Nine innings make up a regular game. An inning is finished when both sides have had their "ins." A side remains "in" until the opposing players have put out three of its batters. Then the other teams does the batting.

It is the desire of all players to achieve runs. The home players always are encouraged by the spectators in these combats, but the lovers of baseball, as far as the olden times are concerned, lack courtesy. They have no affectionate feeling for the visiting players and never beseech them to make runs. In fact, the spectators always seem deeply grieved over such a happening and frequently have broken forth with cries of "Horseshoes," "You lucky slob," etc.

SCHOOL ATHLETES WILL ASK AID

Baseball Team Needs Funds and a Committee Will Call on Business Men—Practice to Begin Next Week.

For the first time since the new high school was opened local business men will be solicited by a trio of high school lads for the purpose of raising money for the baseball team at the school. Up to this time the various school athletics have been self-supporting but the funds are way out of sight and, since baseball is the most expensive item in this department of school activities, it has been deemed necessary to petition the generosity of the merchants of the city. Kingston business men were loyal to the two academies and contributed much money for the support of athletics, many of them being personally present at the games to urge the local lads.

Baseball is expensive because of the extensive paraphernalia which must be used, together with suits. Both of these are necessary, the uniforms giving the team pride in themselves. The amount of the contributions is optional. Either a small or large donation will be very thankfully received but one of the latter is expected because, like all the other teams at the high school, it is expected that the baseball nine will establish a record for itself in these parts. Just as a well known trade mark brings business for a concern, so the advertising of the city by means of the high school teams' record of fair play and hard work will bring results to Kingston. A majority of men are interested keenly in athletics and when the exploits of the maroon and white team are read in out-of-town papers, the readers will scratch their heads and wonder why their own burgers are so lax in sports. Sports in high schools are the making of future citizens. They bring out the real character of the sportsmen and mould their lives accordingly. The classical part of education can be garnered successfully from text books—and there are plenty of them—but the real human-nature side of high school education is taught for the most part on athletic fields, where a fellow rubs shoulders against all kinds of lads and profits accordingly.

Either Saturday or the early part of next week both ends of the city will be solicited, a trio of lads consisting of Edward Stelle, John Church and Russell Dana canvassing the part above the West Shore while the lower section will be "covered" by Earl Gill, John Dwyer and John Schoonmaker.

Baseball Practice Next Week.

The high school pill chasers have been limbering their stiff muscles at the athletic field this week but regular practice will start Monday when probably forty candidates will don baseball clothes and hike over to the diamond for the official opening of spring, baseballically speaking. Coach Schumacker says he will drill his charges every night from 8:30 to 9:30. The short noon hour will permit longer hours on the field than ever before and this is a great advantage.

According to the "Campus," the high school paper which just put in its appearance after a long rest, only two candidates are holding aspirations for the pitching job. They are Huetis and McAuliffe, the latter being K. A.'s pitcher last season. His curves were lacking in result last season because the lad did not have steam enough to propel them successfully but this year he probably has put on more beef and an equal slice of muscle, a necessary possession for twirlers.

Candidates for catcher, though they are few, are high in calibre. Sam Peyer, Ulster's backstop last season, Stevens, sub catcher on the same team, and W. Wilson are the aspirants for this important job on the team. There is some doubt whether Peyer will be able to regain his old form because of his accident last summer at Kingston Point when he played tag with the Grim Reaper while swimming. He was paralyzed for a long time as a result of striking his head on bottom but he says he is in good condition. He recently went through the hardships of the closely contested Junior-Senior basketball game with no bad results.

The outfield candidates are Jim Risley, projector of the outer garlands for K. A. last year and one of the football heroes at Kingston High last fall; Jim Kiernan, speedster and promising outfielder on the Ulster team last summer; Webster—not Grove—but his brother, Fred; and McCluch, Reeres, Hallinan, Murray, Cooper, Siller, Healey and Morse.

The infielders are Captain Terwilliger, who will command his charges from the first plate; Joyce, either short or second; Silverman, K. A.'s 1915 shortstop; Jack Johnston, first base last year for Kingston.

Police, Foyle, J. Ryan, E. Snyder, Garrison, Richmeyer, Griffin, F. Howard, Finnigan, Demler, Murray, Tierney, Relyea, P. Ryan, and Wheeler, second baseman for K. A. last season, will report later.

Actual Value of a Baby.

According to a sociological expert, the actual value of a baby is $50. But you couldn't buy one for that price, no mother would sell it for that, and where he has a full house no father would give five cents for another.

NEED OF NATIONAL DEFENSE URGENT

Uriah MacClinchie so Points Out to Kingston Branch of Security League in Interesting Lecture at High School—What Invading Hosts Could Do.

Preparedness included umbrellas and waterproofs for those who attended the lecture on that subject at the high school auditorium Thursday evening as a penetrating April shower fell from 6 o'clock on and kept the attendance down to about 150. Aided by a large number of marvellously colored slides, Uriah MacClinchie, the lecturer, gave a most comprehensive, though pessimistic, picture of our national defenses together with a review of ancient and modern history as affected by wars. Europe and Mexico furnished many apt arguments for preparedness while the incapacity of our army and navy for emergencies was also emphasized.

Attorney Roger H. Loughran, secretary of the Kingston Branch of the National Security League, introduced the speaker and laid stress on the meaning of "Preparedness" which, he declared, in a larger sense meant construction. No other subject, he said, was receiving so much attention in the United States today and even then not so much as it deserved. Mr. MacClinchie commenced with a comparison of defense conditions a half century and more ago with those of the present, a slide being flashed on the screen to give effective illustration to each point. How in the earlier period this country relied upon the 3,000 miles of ocean on the east and 4,000 miles on the west, was pointed out, a theory all right in the days of sailing craft but obsolete now with ocean liners and rapid ocean transportation.

U. S. Lost Second Place.

The next dependence of the country, its fleet, was then taken up and pictures shown of the second place held by the United States in the point of naval strength which place, however, was lost with the development of the dreadnought type of battleship by Great Britain.

The Oregon, once the pride of our navy, was flashed on the screen and a moment later one of the dreadnought types, a comparison whose significance could not be lost on the serious listeners. The heavier guns of the later types and the ability to fire them at almost any angle were among the advantages of these later craft in whose development the United States has been backward.

Next is the battle cruisers with lighter guns and greater speed. Uncle Sam has lagged according to Mr. MacClinchie, who compared the speed of the British battle cruiser of the Lion type, 35 knots an hour, to the North Carolina and her speed of 22 knots. In mine-layers, we had but two for our 5,000 miles of coast line.

Backward With Subs.

As for the submarine, the same as with the aeroplane, the speaker declared this country had fallen far behind in the development of both. Of the 30 submarines in the navy none were capable of sea voyages such as the cruising submarines developed abroad. On our coast line, with our navy once out the way, he said that an invader could land at more than 100 undefended places on our Atlantic coast alone.

The Panama canal and its needs were also touched upon while the Mexican trouble furnished an object lesson for the speaker. A brigand like Villa with a few thousand men he said can take almost all the standing army to engage in pursuit leaving scarcely a line regiment for duty in other parts of the country. Our army compared with the armies of the other world powers showed us in eighth place and the 150,000 men cited included the militia.

Could Land Large Army.

Within 15 days, Mr. MacClinchie said that a foreign power could land 400,000 men as the beginning of an invading army in this country and within 30 days a like force, making 800,000 men in all. Japan could land 100,000 men within 30 days and another 100,000 in thirty days more. These figures were predicated of course upon the destruction of our navy by the attacking power.

How wars fought today are wars of artillery and the eighth place in respect to field artillery strength came next and the lack of aeroplanes, "the eye of the artillery," was dwelt upon in this connection. Of 11 aeroplanes in service, the speaker said, only two were in active use now as the rest were out of commission and this in the country where these machines were invented. An aeroplane patrol, he declared, would have discovered Villa's attempt to cross the border and prevented his raid.

Economic, Not Race, War.

How this is an economic rather than a race war, fought for trade expansion, was made clear while the condition of Japan, overcrowded and seeking a field for colonization, was pictured. The day when swords were beaten into pruning-hooks would not mean peace he held, for so long as ambition and jealousy kept alive in the human breast pruning-hooks would be merely a different kind of weapon to be used. That the cost of preparedness is no great burden was demonstrated with a pictured representation of our liquor and tobacco bill of $3,200,000 and other amounts running in the hundreds of millions for, luxuries whereas expenditures for, adequate defenses would come to $245,000,000.

The burning of Washington in the War of 1812, despite of the fact that the defending force was far less than the attacking party, was touched upon and Belgium also furnished arguments against a lack of preparedness. How the law of self-preservation operates was made the subject of a striking illustration and the speaker cited China as the great Uriah Ellsworth of Port Jervis has an interesting relic in the form of a complete file of the newspaper "Log Cabin," published from 1811 to November 1, 1840, during the Harrison and Tyler political campaign which resulted in the election of Harrison as president of the United States. The paper was published in New York and Albany and contains many political matters of interest including sketches and cartoons of the day. Politics in the county are also given prominent place.
